

LNGStudy

From: diane dilendik [REDACTED]
Sent: Wednesday, January 23, 2013 1:54 PM
To: FERGAS
Subject: liquified Natural Gas Export Terminals

I would like you to consider the increased fracking that would take place if you give your blessings to the new liquified natural export terminals. Of course we all know that fracking for the gas companies, is about profits. Greater profits can be obtained abroad for their fracked gas than here in the US. But can we really afford to give up millions of gallons of fresh water each time a well is fracked? This happens even before they poison that water and force it miles into the ground. New studies have shown that the poisons DO leak back up into our water table - perhaps not where the water was injected, but miles away and it still poisons our water tables. Before this happens, our fresh water supply is quickly running out. Our forests, animals, and people need fresh water - why would you give it up to corporations whose only concern is profit? Why should our water rates continue to soar so corporate America can rake in profits while leaving us citizens to clean up their "mistakes"? I urge you to say NO to these export terminals and help your citizens begin the huge process of putting some controls in place to virtually save our planet from corporate rape.

Mrs. Diane Dilendik
[REDACTED]